If the form of the swelling be elongated, and the throb extend over a narrowing space and with diminishing force, for a considerable distance up and down the limb, the aneurism is of the fusiform variety; if the tumor be round or oval, and clearly defined from its surroundings, while 1 The theory that this clot is a secretion from the vessels is sufficiently disproved by observing that in most cases it barely adheres to the inner wall of the sac. Until lately, internal aneurisms, save a few abdominal cases, interested only the physician; but recent advances, due chiefly to Dr. Cockle, Mr. Heath, Mr. Holmes, and myself, have placed Uioracic aneurism within the pale of surgical treatment. the separate beat of the artery immediately above and below cannot be verified, the sacculated form of aneurism may be suspected. I say suspected, because every tumor which pulsates is not an aneurism; the pulsation must be of that peculiar quality which we term expansile--that is to say, when the swelling is grasped in the fingers of one or both hands, the beat must seem to drive them apart; it must not merely lift the hand as by a wave propelled from below, but the swelling must be felt to dilate and enlarge with every beat of the heart. If the aneurism be so situated that the artery above it can be compressed, pulsation ceases when such presence is exercised, and the tumor becomes smaller and flaccid--may,...
